New CC site to replace Northcott

By Sarabeth Plymale

Increased enrollment, bringing the faculty together in one area and adding more space are some of the reasons behind the plan for building a new Community College on the present site of Northcott Hall, according to Dr. David F. Wilkin, dean of the Community College.

"The original plan was to renovate Northcott for a Community College building," Wilkin said. "But some engineers have questioned the wisdom of the cost of renovating and operating an older building as opposed to the offset cost of building a new structure."

No concrete plans have been formed for building the structure, which Wilkin said is still about 10 years off.

"The long range plan is to build, but one of the projects we (Marshall) are concerned with right now is the Fine Arts facility and after that (renovation) of Old Main," he said. "The more money available, the more projects that will get done."

Wilkin said a new building would give more space and help bring the faculty together.

"Like other colleges on campus, we have folks scattered everywhere and this will help to bring the folks together."

The Community College also is following a five-year plan which will add courses in emergency medical technician training and computer and electrical technology. Wilkin said the college will be able to offer more classes in the future, but an analysis of demand and cost will be conducted to determine feasibility.

Dorm changes to give students more options

By Sarabeth Plymale

The opening of a residence hall for honor and upper-class students, a study wing for Holderby Hall and a 10-meal plan for juniors and seniors are the changes being made this fall in resident living, according to Ray Welty assistant director of housing.

Welty said Laidley Hall is being opened as an option for upperclassmen.

"The first floor is reserved for sophomores, juniors and seniors having a 3.3 grade point average, while the second and third floors are reserved for juniors and seniors," he said.

Welty said Marshall has received more than 145 applications for the honor hall, 40 more than he had estimated would be needed to make the move feasible.

A study wing has also been set up for the north wing of the second floor in Holderby Hall, Welty said.

Football coach Stan Parrish has changed a long standing policy by allowing his players to stay in any dormitory on campus this fall, and Welty said a majority of them are choosing Holderby. In previous years the football team stayed together in Hodges Hall.

Also this fall, juniors and seniors will be able to purchase a 10-meal plan.

"It provides 10 meals Monday through Friday and it seems to be pretty popular with upperclassmen right now," Welty said.

In the past, students had the option of purchasing a 15- or a 19-meal per week plan.

Welty said a few vacancies are left for men in residence halls, but the facilities for women are full.

Raises bring average faculty salary to $24,743

The average salary for Marshall faculty members has been increased 12.3 percent bringing the 1984-85 average to $24,743, according to President Dale F. Nitzschke.

The raise, made possible by the state Legislature, Board of Regents and campus study committees, increases average faculty salaries $2,717, but Nitzschke said it is still well below the national and regional average.

"I am very pleased that we have been able to bring the faculty salaries up to a more respectable level," Nitzschke said. "But I am very much aware that we are still far below where we should be."

Nitzschke said the raises ranged from the mandated 7.5 percent to 57 percent. Salaries at Marshall now range from a low of $15,327 to a high of $41,400.

Nitzschke said the colleges and universities covered by the Southern Regional Education Board averaged salaries of $26,538, approximately seven percent more than those at Marshall.

West Virginia legislators increased salaries 7.5 percent, but faculty members were given additional money through Senate Bill 612. It provides for minimum salary levels for faculty members based on rank and experience at state colleges and universities.

The faculty salaries study committee was designed to adjust the salaries of faculty whose 1984-85 salaries fell short of salaries consistent with their rank in years, as specified in the Senate bill.

The second objective of the committee was to provide relief for members of the upper two faculty ranks, where Nitzschke said Marshall salaries have fallen far behind those of other institutions. As a result, faculty received an additional annual increase of $10 for each year of service for professors and associate professors.

Nitzschke said the raises recommended by the committee were made possible by a $156,727 allocation from the Board of Regents.

Nitzschke said additional raises for classified staff employees were not provided for in the legislation.

"In virtually all cases, these vital members of the campus community received only 7.5 percent increases, although their salaries, too, are far below what they should be."

WOWK, WSAZ to share coaches' programs

By Dennis Bright

Marshall coaches Stan Parrish and Rick Huckabay have reached separate agreements with two local television stations to broadcast their respective shows during the upcoming seasons, Marshall Sports Information Director Mac Yates said.

For the first time since 1980, Yates said one station will not carry both coaches' programs.

Yates said WOWK-TV will carry Parrish's football program while WSAZ-TV will broadcast Huckabay's show for the first time. Last season, WOWK did both the Sonny Randle and Rick Huckabay shows, but Yates said the change was made because the coaches have the rights to their own shows.

"In essence, it's really the coach's show," he said. "The coaches have the rights to their own shows and really, this is the first year those rights have been actively pursued. We told the coaches to go out and make the best deal for themselves."

WOWK began broadcasting both coaches' programs in 1981, but this season Huckabay's program will air on WSAZ. WOWK Program Director Paul Dicker agrees with Yates and attributes the switch to the fact that Marshall coaches now have the rights to their own program.

"We were simply outbid for the rights," he said. "It is as simple as that."

Yates said Huckabay's show does not have a specific air date on WSAZ due to the varied times at which the team plays its games. He also said the team's travel schedule will play a part in when the program is aired.

Parrish said his program will air live on Sundays at 12:30 p.m. immediately before the NFL game of the week. The first program is scheduled for Sept. 2, the day after the Herd's home opener against West Virginia Tech.

Dicker said there are some surprises in store for Parrish's football show.

"It won't just be a highlight show," he said. "We want to get behind the scenes and into the trenches. We want to see what the coaches are thinking and show that to the viewers."

The show will run twelve weeks and have special in-depth features about players and coaches, Parrish said. He said he wants the show to be one where you can hear comments about the team and find out what the Marshall program is all about from the inside.

He said crews from WOWK will be allowed to do extra filming during games in preparation for the program. This includes being allowed in the locker room to conduct interviews after games, he said.

Three area players among seven Herd soccer recruits

By Dennis Bright

If seven is his lucky number, then Marshall University soccer coach Jack DeFazio should be pleased with this summer's assortment of Thundering Herd soccer recruits.

Seven recruits, including three from the Tri-State, will join 10 starters and 17 returning lettermen this fall as the Herd soccer team kicks off the 1984-85 season.

Tim Deaton, a junior goalkeeper from Severn, Md., is expected to bolster the Herd at his position. Deaton comes to Marshall from Catonsville Community College where he led his team a 17-5 record and a Top 10 ranking in the National Junior College Athletic Association polls.

He was named honorable mention all-state during his senior year at Maryland's Glen Burnie high school.

Tim's brother Bruce, who was red-shirted last season because of an injury, is a returning senior starter on this fall's team.

Freshman midfielder Danny Youngerman from St. Pius X High School in Atlanta, Ga., will join Deaton on the Marshall squad this fall.

Youngerman's high school teams compiled a 26-4 record in three years, including back-to-back 9-1 seasons in 1982 and 1983.

Sean Fouts is DeFazio's only other out-of-state recruit. The freshman midfielder from Pittsburgh led his Chartiers Valley High School team in scoring during his senior season with 19 goals and 17 assists.

He was also recruited by the University of Pittsburgh, Maryland, Akron and West Virginia Wesleyan.

Two of DeFazio's three West Virginia recruits played together at Ceredo-Kenova High School and plan to walk-on at Marshall. Another, Scott Fischer, played at Barboursville and also plans to walk-on.

Midfielder Richie Perdue and striker Chad Pierce both were all-state selections during their senior season at C-K. Pierce also received that honor his junior year.

During his career at C-K, Perdue scored 25 goals and had 40 assists.

Fischer scored 33 goals and 39 assists in high school. His brother Steven is also a member of the Marshall team.

Freshman Gary Benefee is also expected to try to walk-on.

Volleyball player signs with MU

A two-time all-state volleyball selection has signed a letter of intent to play at Marshall for her former high school coach.

Cheryl Beverage of Magnolia High School now becomes the first player to commit to Marshall and new volleyball and track coach Martha Newberry.

Beverage was captain of the 1984 all-state volleyball team and was heavily recruited by schools from Texas, Ohio, South Carolina, Pennsylvania and Kentucky.

She led Magnolia to consecutive AAA State Championships in 1983 and 1984. Those teams, which were coached by Newberry, compiled a two-year record of 69-6, which included a 1983 season record of 39-3.

Beverage was also a track standout at Magnolia. In 1982 she was a state finalist in the 100-meter dash and in 1983 she played on the state runner-up basketball team.

Marshall's women's volleyball team begins its first season under Newberry Sept. 8 when the Herd takes on Southern Conference opponent Western Carolina and Rio Grand College.

These are the first two games scheduled since the program was dropped in 1982.

Basketball games to be televised

By Dennis Bright

Huck's Herd will appear on television at least eight times next season if everything goes according to plan, Sports Information Director Mac Yates said.

Yates said the Marshall Athletic Department has reached an agreement with WSAZ-TV to televise eight Marshall basketball games next fall. He said four road games and four home game are tentatively scheduled for broadcast.

The home games scheduled to be aired include the Nov. 24 season opener against the University of Charleston and the Dec. 15 championship game of the Marshall Memorial Invitational Tournament.

WSAZ will also broadcast home games Dec. 22 against Morehead State and Jan. 12 against Tennessee-Chattanooga.

Road games scheduled to air are Dec. 10, Fresno State; Jan. 7, East Tennessee; Jan. 23, New Orleans; and Feb. 16, Davidson.

Aug. 15 first deadline$21,000 in HERF available for '84-85

Groups wanting to request funds for projects from the Higher Education Resource Fund have until Aug. 15 to do so, according to Dr. Nell Bailey, dean of Student Affairs.

Bailey said HERF has been allocated $21,000 for the 1984-85 fiscal year.

"The HERF committee has managed its funds extremely well in the past and students have been able to do a lot of things they've never been able to do before," she said.

Bailey is chairman of the advisory committee, which is made up of a group of students.

The purpose of the committee is to fund projects which are directly related to student services. Recognized student organizations, academic departments, standing faculty committees and university administrators are eligible to apply for HERF. Qualified groups may receive up to $1,000 for a project undertaken during the school year, she said.

HERF may not be used for salaries.

To receive HERF, a summary of no more than five pages must be submitted to the dean of student affairs one month in advance, she said.

It must include why the group wants to do the project, goals it hopes to achieve and the objectives of the project, she said.

Bailey said what group does the project plans to service and how many members will be participating will be considered.

Dates for when the project will begin and end, a budget breakdown of generating income, other financial resources available, plans to maintain budget, marketing strategies, a list of individuals to be involved in implementation process, evaluation of project and the signature of the project director are also needed, Bailey said.

After the project has been funded and taken place, a written evaluation must be submitted to Bailey within two weeks, she said.

Hunter named new director of SCORES

The director of the Developmental and General Studies Division of the Community College has been named director of SCORES, according to Provost Olen E. Jones Jr.

Carolyn B. Hunter, an associate professor, was named to fill the position when the previous director, Sarah Denman, was appointed assistant dean of the Community College.

SCORES is the Search Committee on Recruiting Excellent Students at Marshall.

Jones said Hunter will be coordinating the university's seventh annual Academic Festival in which high school students from the region compete for scholastic honors.

Hunter joined the university in 1972.

Computer Center raises average 36 percent

Personnel in the Computer Center and the College of Business were among those receiving the largest salary increases above the 7.5 percent mandated by the Legislature, according to President Dale F. Nitzschke.

The Computer Center will receive an average increase of 36 percent for 17 individuals in what Nitzschke called an attempt to "slow the erosion and turnover" in personnel.

The total increase for the center is $102,000.

Nitzschke said a study, conducted by a special faculty salary committee, showed department salaries to be 36 percent behind the salaries of those paid in similar positions at West Virginia University and the West Virginia Network for Educational Telecomputing.

In another move to be more competitive, $125,543 was restored to the College of Business to upgrade the salaries of three of the faculty in Computer Science, three in Management, two in Accounting and one in Marketing. Five of the college's nine positions are currently vacant.

In addition to the department raises, the position of dean of the School of Nursing will receive an 18.7 percent raise bringing the salary to $44,760.

Two assistant full-time basketball coaches will receive raises bringing their salaries to $25,000, Nitzschke said. The raises were made possible by private fund supplements totaling $11,300 from the Big Green Scholarship Foundation.

Tuition waivers for fall limited

A limited number of graduate tuition waivers for the fall semester will be available, according to Dr. Robert F. Maddox, dean of the graduate school.

Students interested in being considered under financial need should work through the financial aid office, Maddox said.

Forms for the waivers are available from the Graduate School and will be accepted through Aug. 9. The waivers cover tuition, registration, Higher Education Resources and Faculty Improvement fees, but not the Student Activity fee, he said.

Students who have waivers this summer must reapply.

Birke Art Gallery is presenting "American Drawings IV." The exhibit consists of 52 works from the running commentary on current trends in contemporary drawing. The Gallery is open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and admission is free.

"Late Twentieth Century Art from the Sydney and Frances Lewis Foundation" and "Painters' Prints" is on exhibit at the Huntington Galleries. The exhibit can be viewed Tues. through Sat. 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sun. Noon to 6 p.m.

A competition for the design of an official Marshall University holiday greeting card is being sponsored by the Art Department and President Dale F. Nitzschke. The contestant with the winning design will receive $500. Everyone is eligible to enter. Entry forms will be available in August at the University Relations Office.

Calendar

Footpath Dance Company of Cleveland will perform Saturday at 8 p.m. in Old Main Auditorium. Footpath is a touring company, but they also are known as a school of contemporary dance. A choreography concert by students of the Footpath Dance Company will perform Aug. 3 at 8 p.m. in Old Main Auditorium.

SED 101 is being taught this session by Dr. Allan Stern Monday and Wednesday from 12 to 12:45 p.m. in Harris Hall Room 444 by the Department of Occupational, Adult and Safety Education. The class includes a $50 lab fee and eight hours of behind the wheel driving.

"Eraserhead" is this Friday's film at the Huntington Galleries. The film is set in a nightmare landscape and tells of a pointy-head man whose girlfriend gives birth to a mutant chicken-baby. Some viewers may find the subject matter disturbing. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for senior citizens and museum members.

Slaatte appointed to national committee

Dr. Howard A. Slaatte, professor of philosophy, has been appointed by the Institute for Advanced Philosophic Research to its national committee to select honorees and award winners for an essay contest.

The awards, known as the Realia

Honors, are for solutions to contemporary philosophic problems and the competition is an international one.

Slaatte, who has been at Marshall since 1965, has twice been a finalist in competitions which drew more than 400 manuscripts each time.

Vickers wins national, state recognition

A Marshall University professor has received national and state recognition for her work in consumer education and home economics.

Dr. Carole A. Vickers, chairman of the Department of Home Economics, was designated as a Distinguished Fellow of the American Council on Consumer Interest at the annual ACCI meeting in Atlanta, Ga. She is one of 20 ACCI Fellows in the nation.

Vickers, a Milton resident, also was named the "Outstanding Home Economist in Higher Education" by the West Virginia Home Economics Association.

She has been a member of the Marshall faculty since 1966.
